Certificate in Investor Relations & International Certificate in Investor Relations

2026

Introduction

We are delighted to welcome you to The Investor Relations Society's Certificate in Investor Relations (CIR[®]) and International Certificate in Investor Relations (ICIR[®]) qualification programme.

You are joining over 2,300 IR professionals who have taken the qualification over the past 20 years, recognised as it is in many international financial markets as the key foundation qualification for those in the IR profession.

The CIR and ICIR study guides were updated in March 2025 and reflect recent changes in the capital markets as well as the increasing regulation and reporting requirements around ESG and sustainability issues. They cover a range of topics, such as the practical aspects of the IRO role and its contribution to the corporate profile, alongside a broader look at financial markets. There are a number of key technical sections on legal, governance and regulatory requirements and corporate reporting obligations. You can see the syllabus of both guides further on in this brochure.

The qualification can be taken as self-study or if you would like additional support we offering supporting courses which support certain sections of the guide.

When I have passed the CIR / ICIR I will:

- ✓ Understand the fundamental principles of the IR function and what best practice IR looks like.
- ✓ Understand the global financial markets and how they operate and the investment styles of equity investors, debt investors and instruments and the role of credit rating agencies.
- ✓ Know the type, formation and legal operation of a company and its governance as well as the key requirements for directors and auditors.
- ✓ Understand the regulatory environment under which listed companies operate, including the UK and EU rules.

2026 exam dates

The Investor Relations Society continues to offer candidates the opportunity to sit their exam online at a date suitable to the candidate and a member of our team. The online process is working well and feedback from candidates has been very positive.

You can also travel to our offices to sit your examination. Please contact Tara Mitchell for a suitable date.

The latest information is available at:
irsociety.org.uk/professional-development/certificate-in-ir

- ✓ Be familiar with the fundamentals of basic accounting, ratios, valuation and investment analysis.
- ✓ Be aware of the required ethical and professional standards expected of investor relations practitioners.

- ✓ Know the periodic statutory reporting requirements for a listed company and the growing importance of non-financial disclosures. You will know the growing importance of non-financial and ESG disclosures to investors and other stakeholders.

Certificate in Investor Relations (CIR) & International Certificate in Investor Relations (ICIR)

The CIR / ICIR is an internationally recognised qualification for the investor relations profession. It allows candidates to demonstrate their knowledge of the investor relations role, the financial and market environment, the regulatory and reporting requirements for listed companies and a sound understanding of the principles of investor relations, which will enable them to operate competently and safely.

Obtaining the CIR provides international recognition as a qualified IR practitioner; demonstrates competence and commitment to the profession; and enhances career development.

The CIR is a self-study qualification based on the Society's comprehensive CIR Study Guide. It is assessed by an examination comprising 60 multiple-choice questions, based on the topics set out in the syllabus.

The International CIR (ICIR)

We offer an international syllabus of the CIR which captures the essential elements common to international markets. We recommend the CIR for those who either work for, or advise, companies with a UK listing. We recommend the ICIR for all others.

Who should sit the CIR / ICIR?

It is suitable for anyone working in investor relations or related professions, or considering a move into investor relations, either in the UK or overseas.

Studying for the CIR/ICIR

Home Study

The Study Guide provides a comprehensive overview of the main subject areas that you will need to know in order to pass the CIR / ICIR examination. It is intended to support other learning sources such as courses and reading material.

Each section has an introduction page which outlines what you will learn and the required knowledge in order to pass the exam. On average, 40 hours of self-study is recommended to complete the Study Guide. You should also consider attendance on other relevant Society courses to expand your knowledge base and understanding of the topics covered. As a revision aid, you can also take an online mock examination (as many times you as like) which will help you assess whether you have grasped the key principles.

“ The study guide combines theoretical concepts with practical advice and provides a tremendous springboard into the key topics that will be important for companies and investors moving forward ”

CIR / ICIR syllabus

Non-member: £860 + VAT

“Very informative and a good level of interaction”

“Really interesting to get a greater understanding of what kind of reporting is required in listed companies”

FAQs

Who should take the CIR / ICIR?

The CIR / ICIR is suitable for anyone working in investor relations or in related professions. It is also suitable for those considering a move into IR, either in the UK or in other markets. The content is comprehensive and covers most of what an IR practitioner would require. The CIR / ICIR body of material represents a useful guide and source of reference at all times.

How long does it take to study for the CIR / ICIR?

We suggest that a minimum of 40 hours of self-study is required to prepare for the examination, depending on a candidate's existing level of IR experience.

What does the registration fee cover?

Once your registration fee has been received, you will be given access to our candidate zone where you can:

- access your study guide;
- access the mock exam platform to track your progress;
- book CIR supporting courses; and
- access the monthly policy round-up.

Your final exam sitting is also included in the registration fee.
